Objective and investment policy

The objective of the mutual fund is to offer flexible management, primarily invested in equity markets, over a minimum investment period of five years. Despite operating within larger allocation limits, the mutual fund's profile may be compared with an allocation made up of 95% equities and 5% public and private bonds on average, exposed in developed markets with a euro bias as well as in emerging markets.

The mutual fund is managed actively without any reference to a benchmark index.

The investment strategy is discretionary and is based on a portfolio management process organised around three pillars:

- a medium/long-term strategic asset allocation depending on the manager's level of conviction (asset classes, geographical areas, sectors),
- a tactical allocation resulting from the manager's short-term convictions in order to strive to take advantage of market opportunities,
- a selection of undertakings for collective investment (UCI) and managers able to, according to us, generate performance over time.

Risk and Reward Profile

Do not run any unnecessary risk. Read the Key Information Document (KID).

The risk and reward indicator is based on price volatility over the last five years, and is an indicator of absolute risk. Historical data may not be a reliable indication for the future. The value of an investment, and any income from it, may fall as well as rise, and you may not get back the amount you originally invested. The category is not guaranteed to remain unchanged and the categorisation may shift over time. The lowest category does not mean a risk-free investment. This Mutual Fund is classified in category 4 because its price or simulated data has shown medium fluctuations historically.

Fund Manager Commentary

Economic Environment

In the United States, growth forecasts for the second quarter showed a recovery, with GDP growing at a rate of 3%. However, inflation, as measured by the PCE index, rose to 2.6% year-on-year in June, reflecting the impact of recent tariffs. The Federal Reserve has kept rates unchanged but remains vigilant about the potential slowdown in growth and the labor market.

In the euro area, growth stagnated in the second quarter, following a first quarter buoyed by anticipated exports., PMIs showed signs of improvement, reaching their highest levels of the year.

Fueled by progress on tariffs with the agreement with the European Union in particular, global equities performed strongly, with the MSCI World in euros recording an increase of 4.4% over the month. In the United States, the S&P 500 rose 5.29%, driven by better-than-expected profits from large technology companies.

Emerging markets also performed well (+5.04%), while the MSCI index for the euro area was more stable at +1.06%.

Currencies were also influenced by uncertainties about the US economic outlook, with the US dollar depreciating by 3.15% against the euro.

Performance & current holdings

There have been notable upward pressures on US rates amid inflationary fears. The yield on US 10-year rates went up at 4.38% (+15 bps) followed, to a lesser extent, by European rates at 2.70% for the German 10-year.

The portfolio benefited from its overweight in equities and our tactical exposure to the U.S. market. Within U.S. equities, we have benefited from our under-exposure to the consumption staples and materials sectors against growth sectors.

In Europe, our sectors choices have been favorable with over-exposure to financial sectors at the expense of more cyclical sectors such as media or automobile. This more than compensated for our choices of countries that were penalized by the Netherlands' underperformance.

In emerging markets, our absence from the Thai market, which bounced back strongly in July, was unfavorable. We are strengthening our position in frontier market against global emerging markets. Within the thematic pocket, we have increased the share of technology innovation funds by debit of our infrastructure support.

Finally, holdings on alternatives, including commodities, has generally supported performance.

Outlook

The US is expected to experience moderating growth in 2025, while emerging markets are benefiting from more favorable dynamics. These include lower inflationary pressures and accommodative monetary policy in some regions, such as Asia, supported by a weakening US dollar.

On the monetary front, the Fed is maintaining a cautious approach and awaiting an assessment of the economic impacts of the tariff hike. The ECB is likely to resume cutting interest rate in September and fiscal support is increasing in the eurozone.

In equity markets, we maintain a tactical preference for the US following the strong corporate earnings season. We remain more neutral on Europe, which benefits from attractive valuations and stimulative fiscal policies at the expense of Japan. We have increased the share of growth stocks in the United States and favor undervalued and small market capitalization stocks in the euro area.
